

George Washington University Clinical Psychology Ph.D. Program
Faculty Preference Ranking
Admissions for 2025-2026 Academic Year

The Ph.D. program in Clinical Psychology at the George Washington University follows a mentorship model. Our program selects qualified applicants whose interests fit closely with the overall goals of the program, and with the research interests of specific faculty members. We request that you review the list of faculty below, and rank order up to two faculty members whose research interests best match your current research interests (1 = first choice, 2 = second choice). We will use your faculty rankings to identify potential faculty mentors.

Please indicate the faculty members you have selected on the online application for the Ph.D. program in Clinical Psychology. To aid you in your rankings, more detailed information about each faculty member is provided at the GWU Psychology Department website: <https://psychology.columbian.gwu.edu/people>

Please note that this form only includes faculty who will be available to mentor new students in the 2025-2026 academic year. Drs. Howe, Molock, and Rohrbeck are no longer taking students currently nor in future years.

Sarah Calabrese

HIV biomedical prevention (e.g., PrEP, U=U); sexual wellbeing; stigma and health disparities; racial, sexual, and gender minority health; intersectionality.

Fallon Goodman

Social anxiety and interpersonal rejection; sexual and gender minority health; well-being and resilience to adversity; emotion regulation and coping.

David Huebner

Sexual and gender minority (SGM) health; behavioral and biomedical HIV prevention; family processes and interventions in SGM health; health consequences of discrimination

Sharon Lambert

Race-related and neighborhood stressors among minoritized youth and families; family, community, and neighborhood factors promoting health and wellbeing; internalizing problems; school-based prevention.